Lake Metigoshe State Park Celebrates with ND Forest Service

This year, the North Dakota Forest Service is celebrating their forestry centennial in North Dakota and Lake Metigoshe State Park is going to help them celebrate. Glenda Fauske, Education Coordinator for the North Dakota Forest Service, will be presenting a program entitled, “100 Years of Forestry in North Dakota” at Lake Metigoshe State Park on Friday, August 11, 2006. The program will start at 8:30 p.m. (CDT) at the park’s amphitheater.

Fauske will be discussing the role forestry has played over the last 100 years. To the ND Forest Service, the last century has provided determination, strength, and resourcefulness for the students and faculty of Minot State University-Bottineau (MSU-B) as well as the community and the state of North Dakota. For 100 years, the North Dakota School of Forestry (1906-1969), NDSU-Bottineau (1969-1996), and MSU-Bottineau (1996-present), has been an institution of higher learning that prepared numerous men and women to become contributing members of society. The Forest Service’s centennial logo, designed by Amy Anderson (class of 1984), reflects the heritage and aspirations with the motto “rooted in the past – growing towards the future.”

Everyone is encouraged and welcomed to join us in celebrating 100 years of forestry in North Dakota at Lake Metigoshe State Park.
